

Caesar Exhibit

SETF is the custodian of the Caesar file detailing the torture and death of thousands of men, women, and children by the Assad government.

SETF works with the Caesar team to expose the regime's flagrant human rights violations by holding powerful photo exhibits.

Through these 55,000 photos we continue to identify victims and witnesses to bring cases against the regime in countries that have universal jurisdictions or where victims may hold dual citizenship.

The Caesar photos along with the cellphone and flash-drive used to smuggle the pictures out of Syria have been verified by the FBI's International Human Rights Unit (IHUR).

Who is Caesar?

Caesar (a pseudonym) was a Syrian military photographer who was conscripted by the Assad regime to take pictures of people who died in military detention. In early 2011 he began to notice that civilians were being tortured and killed in the detention centers. He started amassing photographic documentation of the civilian deaths. When Caesar's life became too endangered, he fled Syria with a flash drive full of photographs in his sock. Caesar now lives in hiding outside of Syria. His flash drive is at The US Holocaust Memorial Museum in DC.

History

In 2014, the Syrian Emergency Task Force arranged for Caesar to testify before the House Foreign Affairs Committee. This testimony prompted the drafting and later passage of the Caesar Syria Civilian Protection Act in which SETF played a vital role .

Mission

The Caesar Act sanctions the Syrian regime, including Syrian president Bashar al-Assad, for war crimes against the Syrian population. Not only was SETF pivotal in the drafting and passing of the Caesar Act, but we currently works alongside the United States State Department to implement Caesar Act sanctions and bring justice for the Syrian people.
